

to the Point

with Carrie Baker, photographer

Name: Carrie N. Baker

Hometown: Mount Berry

Degree(s) (if applies): Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, J.D., Ph.D. I studied photography with Thomas Roma at Yale University in the early 1980s. My work is currently on display in Rome at the Rome Area Council for the Arts, Cobblestone Shoppe and Earthworks Pottery. My Web site is www.carriebaker.net.

Daily job: Berry College professor of sociology and women's studies

Type and genre of art: Photography

When did your love for this type of art begin? When I was traveling in East Africa at the age of 19 (1984).

Carrie Baker

What are some of the things that inspire you? Natural beauty. I live at Berry and there's plenty of it there; cracked paint, architectural details on Broad Street.

What are some of the materials you use to create your art? I love to photograph chipping and peeling paints on old pieces of farm equipment behind the red barns at Berry; I also love to photograph trees, of which there are plenty at Berry!

Who are some of your favorite artists in this genre? In a different genre? In photography, Joe Cook, Carol Weeks and Ansel Adams

What, within your own work, are some of your favorite pieces? "Ice," "Rusting," "Threshold," "Yesterday's Storefront," "Buck," "Leaf Series" and "Fall Reflections"

Carrie Baker has used Berry College as the focus of her photographs many times. "Sunrise" (right) is just one of them.
